Company Description:

The team at Interlink GmbH has been active nationwide in all mobility issues for many years, accompanying its clients from project concept to implementation. The company, founded in 2004, is headquartered in Berlin, with project offices in Kiel and Stuttgart.

We advise various client groups in all areas of sustainable mobility, including transport companies, transport associations, authorities, ministries, local governments, project developers, political institutions, and tourism-related businesses.

Three main themes characterize our work: (a) integrated transport planning, especially the development and implementation of mobility concepts focusing on sustainable transport, (b) traditional public transport service planning, and (c) autonomous driving in public transport.

Additionally, we work across all professional topics in communication and management.

The current team of 21 employees is highly implementation-oriented, drawing on extensive experience in positions within transport companies or implementation-oriented research and development projects. This includes experience in dealing with regulatory authorities, shareholders, the political sphere, project management organizations, as well as end customers or users themselves. The range of topics is broad and is expanded through a vast network of longstanding partnerships, covering areas not directly within the team's expertise.
